

Contributors / Collaborateurs

Volume 23, Number 2, Spring 1994

URI: https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/acad23_2con01

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

The Department of History of the University of New Brunswick

ISSN

0044-5851 (print)

1712-7432 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

(1994). Contributors / Collaborateurs. Acadiensis, 23(2), 2–2.

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

ROSEMARY OMMER is Research Director, Institute of Social and Economic Research, Memorial University of Newfoundland and the author of From Outpost to Outport: A Structural Analysis of the Jersey-Gaspé Cod Fishery, 1767-1886 (McGill-Queen's University Press, 1991). Her contribution to this issue was presented in October 1993 as the W.S. MacNutt Memorial Lecture at the University of New Brunswick. STEVEN PENFOLD received his M.A. in history at York University and, following two years of underpaid part-time work in the Maritimes, he has returned to York to prepare a thesis on working-class history in 19th-century Ontario. BERNARD RANSOM is chief curator at the Newfoundland Museum in St. John's and is adjunct historian at the Directorate of History, Department of National Defence. A former professor of film studies at Queen's University, CHARLES R. ACLAND teaches communication studies at the University of Calgary; a former professor of sociology at the University of New Brunswick, WILLIAM J. BUXTON teaches communication studies at Concordia University; together they are editing Rockefeller Philanthropy and Canadian Culture, forthcoming from McGill-Queen's University Press. JAMES L. KENNY was educated at St. Francis Xavier University and the University of New Brunswick and is completing a doctoral dissertation for Carleton University. CARL A. BRASSEAU has published many books and articles on the history of French North America; he teaches at the University of Southwestern Louisiana and is currently editor of Louisiana History. NICOLAS LANDRY is Dean of Studies at the Centre universitaire de Shippagan, Université de Moncton, where he also teaches history; he is completing a book for Editions d'Acadie on the history of the fishery in the Acadian Peninsula in the 19th century. DARRELL McLAUGHLIN is a graduate student in sociology at the University of New Brunswick, where he is preparing a comparative study of sustainable agriculture in Canada and Sweden; he was a contributor to Gary Burrill and Ian McKay, eds., People, Resources and Power: Critical Perspectives on Underdevelopment and Primary Industries in the Atlantic Region (Acadiensis Press, 1987). MARTY DAVIS is policy analyst at the Department of Indian Affairs, Atlantic Regional Office; he has taught a variety of courses in history and Canadian studies at Mount Allison University. ALAN R. YOUNG is head of the Department of English at Acadia University; he has published several books on English Renaissance and Canadian literature, including Time and Place: The Life and Works of Thomas H. Raddall (Acadiensis Press, 1991). A member of the Department of History at Carleton University, DUNCAN McDOWALL is one of Canada's leading practitioners of business history; his most recent book, Quick to the Frontier: Canada's Royal Bank (McClelland and Stewart, 1993), was the winner of the 1993 National Business Book Award. JEFFREY KESHEN is a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Alberta; he has published in the Canadian Historical Review and is currently researching the Second World War and Canadian families; PAUL VOISEY is the author of Vulcan: The Making of a Prairie Community (University of Toronto Press, 1988) and teaches history at the University of Alberta. A member of the Department of History at Memorial University and President of the Newfoundland Historical Society, MALCOLM MacLEOD is the author of a forthcoming Canadian Historical Association booklet, Kindred Countries: Newfoundland and Canada Before Confederation.