MIKE YUHASZ

GREAT NORTH DEVELOPMENT GROUP

Multidisciplinary artist Mike Yuhasz's Great North Development Group project explores the way we conceive of and relate to land in today's complex world. Yuhasz's confected, prearranged, set-up, and situational photographic and informational material carries contradictory and duplicitous messages about the consumer ethos. The project is as much about our potential collective perception, understanding, and potential exploitation of land as territory as it is about the orchestration of visual information and the sophistication (or lack thereof) of presentational frameworks in today's society. Mike Yuhasz's project does not necessarily encourage an understanding of our links to nature, but it successfully explores the parameters of contemporary media and corporate culture.

Working Today For Our Tomorrow

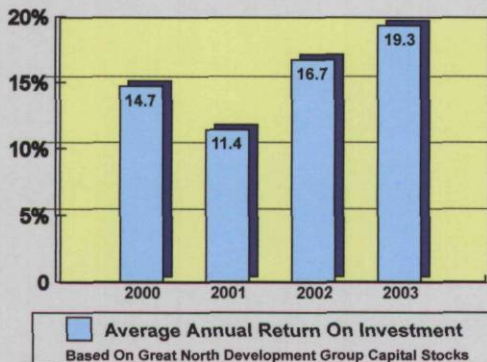

Great North Development Group

Great North Development Group is a Yukon based Corporation with subsidiary companies in the resource, communications and engineering sectors. For over thirty years Great North has been an industry pioneer in the Far North, developing innovative and creative solutions in a challenging arctic environment with an ongoing commitment to creating viable long-term economies and healthy communities.

Great North - one of the largest Northern-based corporations of its kind - maintains an impressive and expanding portfolio of companies and operations. Great North's Resources Division is a North American industry leader in mineral, oil & gas and forestry exploration, development and production. Our Communications Division utilizes and develops cutting edge technologies to provide communication services, infrastructure and systems designs for clients throughout the north. Great North's Engineering Division provides world class scientific, consulting and project management services to the natural resources, urban and industrial development, transportation and environmental sectors.
