Ciel variable

Art, photo, médias, culture

Warehouses and Logos

Number 74, December 2006

Logos

URI: https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/20911ac

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

Les Productions Ciel variable

ISSN 1711-7682 (print)

1923-8932 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

(2006). Warehouses and Logos. Ciel variable, (74), 20–22.

Tous droits réservés © Les Productions Ciel variable, 2006

érudit

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

https://www.erudit.org/en/

FRANK BREUER WAREHOUSES AND LOGOS

Cologne-based photographer Frank Breuer is a virtuoso of profuse emptiness. His photographs of the bleak but strangely beautiful warehouses and of the logo-bearing, corporate, pylon-like signs that often stand nearby seem largely emptied of discursive, annotative meaning. Because both the warehouses and the emptied sign-structures that are his subject offer no internal articulation, they are essentially scale-less, possessing temporality rather than interiority, and having more to do with duration, extension, and proliferation than with architecture or idea. This leads them toward a role as extrapolated minimalist objects: constant, indivisible, and, being spectacle-free (in the Debordian sense), paradoxically neutral, though imbued with the grace of presentness.

