

Alteration

Dan Campion

Volume 9, Number 2, 2022

Learning from one another in medical encounters

URI: <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/1089935ar>

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.26443/ijwpc.v9i2.309>

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

McGill University Library

ISSN

2291-918X (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

Campion, D. (2022). Alteration. The International Journal of Whole Person Care, 9(2), 36–36. <https://doi.org/10.26443/ijwpc.v9i2.309>

© Dan Campion, 2022

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

<https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/>

érudit

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

<https://www.erudit.org/en/>

Alteration

Dan Champion

Iowa, USA

jecdrc@earthlink.net

From lack of sleep we've ceased to be ourselves:
One way that illness cushions sufferers.
Exploring unread books that grace our shelves
we're taken where the fanciful occurs.
At least until our concentration wanes
we're elsewhere, other, favored with fresh cares,
which, being not our own, relieve our pains.
We venture where no healthy person dares,
believing in impossibilities.
It's possible we've never been more real,
our true selves stand revealed by our disease.
But no. That thought's dismissed without appeal.
We've crossed and recrossed all the lines and bars of worlds enough. This wakeful one is ours. ■